The department store „Steen & Strøm“ is the oldest and biggest one in Norway's capital Oslo. It was founded more than 200 years ago as small shop and since that days the store was permanently extended and enlarged. Today the store consists of seven floors where the consumers nearly can get everything they desire. After a fire in 1929 and the following reconstruction it was the first department store with escalators in northern Europe. After the first renewing of the escalators in 1970, in 1999/2000 the escalators had to be renewed again. Following to the good experiences with the last escalators, the management of the department store decided to insert Thyssen escalators from Hamburg again.
